THE Book Mark

By JANE VOILES

If you like a novel that has plenty of action, that does not depend entirely on the "love interest" for its readability, that is not a tract for the time, then don't miss "Reckon With the River," by Clark McMeekin.

Dorothy Clark and Isabel McMeekin are the gifted team who gave us one of last year's best sellers, "Show Me a Land," that colorful story of Kentucky and horses. If you liked that book, we venture to predict that you will like the new one even better.

Stories in heroines change. There was a time when a heroine had to be young and beautiful and a victim of circumstances. Today if a girl were to be taken as to the favorite type of heroine, the "matriarch" would come pretty high up on the list. The matriarch, as you know, is the old woman who still keeps a rein on the family fortune and enterprises. There is a perfectly grand matriarch in "Reckon With the River," in fact, she is so much more important than the river that you wonder why the book wasn't called "Reckon With Ma'm Cambrin."

The story opens at the time that Thomas Jefferson was president, but don't let that discourage you as it might very well open while F. D. R. is president from the point of view of character and theme. Ma Cambrin is eighty. Too much damn roll followed by an attack of pneumonia might have been the last of Ma'am Cambrin had she been on another mold. She regains consciousness to hear the hired man driving pegs into her coffin and to see the hired woman trying to make her sign a will in favor of the hired help. But the situation that Ma'am couldn't handle had never yet arisen and she handles this one in a highly satisfactory manner.

Quite by accident Ma'am discovers that she is in possession of a grant (written on birch bark) to an island which holds treasure. The island is in the Ohio river, down Kentucky way. Ma'am Cambrin had lived with Mohawks when she was a girl and proudly claims to be the "almost-sister" of a great Indian chief had never got the fire of adventure out of her blood. Her husband and three sons died on the open field which, according to Ma'am's code, was as it should have been, for to her notion "a coffin cramped the toes." The only kin left to her is a nephew, Jess, a dreamy kind of person interested only in digging into old mounds. In the words of his practical wife, Jess is forever "trying to catch the moon with his teeth."

Jess arrives to bury his great-aunt only to find her making active preparations to go in search of her treasure island. Jess and his family go with her. If they were going today they would buy an old jalopy but in those days they bought a river boat. For a time they became a part of the river community at old Fort Dedstone and this is where the river comes in. The writers know exactly how to impart the flavor of river life, making an outmoded form of transportation live again.

"Reckon With the River" can scarcely be called an historical novel but it has an historical flavor which gives you "the feel" of history more effectively than a lot of documentation badly presented would give. Aaron Burr trying to establish his monarchy has more than a passing interest in Ma'am Cambrin's island; the Blennerhassets offer hospitality to the Cambrins at Ile le Beau; Johnny Appleseed confidently scatters his seeds along the route traveled by the Cambrins. It is possible that Mike Fink the river boss was more than a legendary character. Mike ruled

MOTHERS' DAY PICNIC PLANS ARE STARTED

Eleventh Annual Community Event At Rescue Will Be Held On Sunday, May 11th

Plans were instituted this week for the eleventh annual Mothers' Day picnic at Rescue, to be held in the Litten-MacDonald grove on Sunday, May 11th.

The picnic is presented each year as a community event by the United Rescue Grange and the Rescue Farm Center, each organization naming representatives to serve on the general committee.

Mrs. Julia MacDonald is honorary chairman for the Mothers' Day picnic and the committee includes Harry Cridge, chairman; Vinton Veerkamp, Harry McGrath, Fred Wessels, George Townsend, Clyde Hotchkiss, Charles Mayhew and Fred Mayhew.

Mrs. MacDonald has been asked to arrange for the speakers at the morning program and other members of the committee are planning the afternoon of sports and other special features of the day.

The general program will follow the schedule established by previous picnics at Rescue on Mothers' Day.

The committee reports that in addition to advancing arrangements for the day's program, they are directing improvement of the grounds to provide more benches and install comfort stations.

Orchestra Makes Bow Thursday

Evelyn Farrelle, Director, With Frank Dames As Concertmaster For Debut

The Placerville Philharmonic Orchestra, which has been formed and has been in rehearsal during the past winter under the direction of Evelyn Farrelle, will give its first concert on Thursday evening at the Shakespeare clubhouse auditorium.

Doors will be open at 7:30 o'clock and the concert is scheduled to begin at 8:15 o'clock. No admission will be charged and the attendance of the music loving public of the county is invited.

It is hoped that the interest manifested in the initial program on Thursday evening may encourage the orchestra to present several concerts during the next season.

Frank Dames, well-known Placerville violinist, will be the concertmaster for the opening concert. The program will include works by the world masters of music and each selection will be accompanied by a short description of the piece so that those who are not so familiar as some others are, with the numbers on the program, may share with the musicians in a fuller enjoyment of the concert.

The opening overture will be "The Golden Scepter," by Schlegel. This will be followed by the "Andante" from the "Surprise Symphony," by Haydn. A group of lighter arrangements will be included with the selections from "The Bohemian Girl."

The members of the Placerville Philharmonic Orchestra have been drawn together by their love and appreciation of music and constitute a truly community organization in that they have given and are giving of their time, energy and funds to promote the success of the undertaking.

Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Risser are home from Idaho Falls, Idaho, for a visit at their home and with relatives and other friends.

POPPY POSTER CONTEST ENDS

Ardene Fairchild Wins First Award; Entries Displayed In Window

Awards in the annual Poppy Poster contest, sponsored for pupils of the high school art classes by the American Legion Auxiliary, were announced Tuesday morning by Mrs. P. F. Volz, chairman of the committee in charge.

There were thirty-four posters entered in the contest and some of the best of the entries are on display this week in the window of the business office of this newspaper.

Cash awards of $3 for the winner, $2 for second place and $1 for third place will be presented at a high school student body meeting to be called in the near future.

First place was claimed by Ardene Fairchild. Second award was won by Loreen Boromini, a freshman art pupil, and third prize was awarded Patricia Crowe.

Anyone who looks over some of the thirty-four entries in the contest will readily appreciate the difficulty which the judges must have experienced in making their selections of the best posters.

ARTIST WITH CROSS-EYED CAT MAY "DO" MURAL FOR POSTOFFICE

A cross-eyed Siamese cat is the "chief assistant" as well as a good luck charm for Tom E. Lewis, California artist, who has been commissioned to paint the mural for the Placerville postoffice, says a Sacramento paper.

The cat, dubbed Mr. Turpentine, arrived as a stray at the San Francisco home of Lewis, and immediately a demand for Lewis' oil and water colors sprang up throughout the county. The first mural order from the section of fine arts came shortly afterward. The Placerville order is his third federal commission.

Since Turps arrived, Lewis came out victorious with $800 cash in the 1940 Phelan art award competition, with the added distinction of being designated as the California painter promising to bring the greatest credit to his state.

Rev. and Mrs. Barrett Visit In Placerville

The Rev. and Mrs. John Barrett, enroute from their Indian mission station in Trinity County to Nevada City to attend a diocesan convention of the Episcopal Church, were in Placerville Tuesday visiting their son, Leo Barrett, and renewing old-time friendships.

Father Barrett, for several years a member of the Placerville Lions during his tenure as rector of the Church of Our Saviour, and for some years afterward a member at large of the club, joined the Lions for their regular Tuesday luncheon meeting at Hotel Raffles.

Wallace M. Ripley, chamber of Commerce secretary, returned Monday evening from a week at the Los Angeles Outing Show. Tuesday he was at home caring for a cold he had acquired during the week in the southland.

CITY BOOSTS WAGE SCALE FOR LABOR

Council Okehs Election Of Tetrault As Fire Chief As Firemen Seek To End Strife

An adjourned meeting of the city council, held at the city hall Monday evening, increased the hourly wage scale for labor in the city employ and approved the election by the fire department of Mark Tetrault to be chief during the balance of the present year.

Some of the firemen, speaking before the council, reported that although there appeared to be a sharp diversion in the department, there are hopes that the differences may be reconciled within the department and without again bringing the matter to public attention.

Members of the council suggested to the firemen that the council's interest and the community's interest is in the fire department as a unit and joined in the hope that following the recent flurry into public attention the department members will find a common ground and compromise whatever differences of opinion may exist, in the public interest.

Tetrault had resigned as chief about two weeks ago.

A report to the council by Works Superintendent Russell Anderson that certain of the city's employees were leaving his department to accept jobs in other fields, directed the attention of the council to the city wage scale in the works department.

Wages paid were fifty cents an hour for unskilled labor and fifty-six and a quarter cents an hour for skilled labor. Members of the council pointed out that the city is in no position to compete at paying wages with the scale which may be developed in defense industries, and that the city has no intention of entering into such competition.

However, the council felt that the wage scale is low enough to warrant some revision upward, and that provision should be made for a larger differential than six and one-quarter cents between skilled and unskilled labor.

The scale ultimately agreed upon increased the wages for unskilled labor to sixty cents an hour or $4.80 an eight-hour day and skilled labor to seventy cents an hour, or $5.60 an eight-hour day.

Quigleys Moving Across Street

Alderson Building Being Renovated And Will Be Occupied Early In May

The J. H. Quigley Grocery store, for thirty-six years at the southeast corner of Main and Sacramento streets, will move early in May to the opposite side of Main Street into the Alderson Building.

Mr. Quigley confirmed the report, which had been heard on the street for several days, on Tuesday morning.

The new location will be renovated and made ready for a modern service store prior to the move, with James P. Morton in charge.

In announcing plans for the move, Mr. Quigley said that it is believed the new location will permit of a better display of merchandise and afford more room and opportunity for increased service for patrons and the change also will permit of a thorough modernization of the service features of the business.

Forest Fire Season Opens In Eleven Eastern States

Civilians and soldiers fought a seemingly endless battle against numerous small fires in the parched woodlands of 11 eastern states today.

Most of the big outbreaks had been brought under control, but forestry officials said the danger of continued loss of timber and property would persist for the duration of the drought.

Many sections of the east have not had heavy rain since the middle of March. The public was barred from woodlands in Connecticut. Similar action was predicted in Massachusetts.

The fires formed a patchwork of

INCREASING NAZI PRESSURE COMPELS QUICK DECISION

Greek King Forced To Choose Between Asking For Armistice, Abandoning Athens, or Shifting Seat Of Government And Continuing Resistance

By J. W. T. MASON

United Press War Expert

King George of Greece, with his new responsibilities as the real director of the Greek government, is being forced by the increasing pressure of the German offensive to reach a quick decision whether to ask for an armistice, abandon Athens and make a military retreat to Peloponnese or move his government to Crete or North Africa to continue the war against the Axis.

Whatever the King decides, the most immediate necessity for the Allies is to make the battlefield as short as possible. If the King concludes that capitulation is essential in the best interests of Greece, he is honor bound to delay such action until he has given the British army an opportunity to transport as much of its force and equipment as possible to Egypt. For that purpose, a shortened front is essential, since the weight of defense would have to fall on the Greeks.

Similarly, if the King intends to continue fighting on Greek soil, by moving southward into Peloponnese, the shorter the front north of Athens, the better chance for an effective rearguard action until the main army can reach the Peloponnese positions. Peloponnese is virtually an island, separated from the rest of Greece by the Gulf of Patras, the Gulf of Corinth and a canal, which would slow down any retreat to its protective shores.

A large force in Peloponnese normally would have a chance of holding back any attacking army for a considerable time. The intervening waterways form a natural bulwark but the problem of supplying defense Greek divisions would be serious and might in itself lead to defeat.

It would seem that if the Greeks have decided not to imitate France's example of surrender, the most effective alternative would be to transfer their government and what

"WAR MONGERS" PRAY FOR INCIDENT, SEN. WHEELER CHARGES

BUTTE, Mont. (UP)—Senator Burton K. Wheeler, D., Montana isolationist, last night charged in a speech that "war mongers in the east are hoping and praying that one of our boats will be sunk and that we will be dragged into the war."

Speaking before an audience of 2,000 in his home town, Wheeler said the nation must have the "intestinal stamina" to demand that President Roosevelt keep the U. S. out of war.

NAZIS ATTACK ISLANDS IN AEGEAN SEA

London, Declining Comment On Evacuation Report, Says Army Stands At Thermopylae

By UNITED PRESS

Great Britain and Greece fought to hold Adolf Hitler's blitzkrieg armies on the ancient battlefield at Thermopylae and on islands guarding the entrance to the Dardanelles today after the Royal navy battered the Axis base at Tripoli in the longest big-gun bombardment of the war.

On the Greek war front the allied forces faced tremendous odds in battling constant air attacks and the pressure of Germany's iron panzer divisions fighting to establish positions in the mountains less than 100 miles northwest of Athens.

London indicated the climatic test would come in attempting to defend a 40-mile line running from near Thermopylae to the mountains near the Gulf of Corinth, thus establishing a rear-guard defense along the peninsula leading to Athens and possibly permitting the Greek army in the west to pull back from the German pincers.

Farther east, German troops dashing across the Aegean sea in powerful speed boats, presumably from Salonika, were reported to have occupied the Greek island of Samothrace, which lies just outside Turkish territorial waters, and to have attacked the Greek island of Lemnos, and there were reports British troops had been landed there recently, but the outcome of the battle was not known, according to Istanbul dispatches. The British navy was reported counter-attacking the Germans in an effort to drive them back to the mainland.

The navy was joined by naval planes and the RAF in the attack on Tripoli, the Axis base for the current land campaign through Libya, into Egypt and against the Suez Canal. The RAF alone dropped

Wading Pool Is Being Studied

Lions Committee To Meet With Council; Public May Unite To Assist Project

The committee in charge of the project to establish a wading pool for small children at the city playground, which is sponsored by the Lions Club, will meet with the city council in the near future in furtherance of the undertaking.

This was the substance of a report made to the club at its luncheon meeting Tuesday at Hotel Raffles by George E. Faugsted, the committee chairman.

Following Faugsted's report the club took action noting that the wading pool project is sponsored by the club but that the sponsorship need not, necessarily, restrict general public support of the project. It was indicated that at a later date, opportunity may be provided for the public to join in support of the project.

The club named a committee including Lions H. E. Dillinger, Louis Armes, John H. Palmer, J. G. Hearn and C. E. Barker on nomination of candidates for offices and heard a report by Lion Thomas Maul, supplemented by a report by Lion William Runsey, of Folsom, on tentative plans for a district meeting of Lions and their ladies at Larkin Hall, at the prison, complimenting District Governor Bob Jefford.

The program for the meeting would include dancing and a tour of the prison.

Guest speaker of the day was Maurice T. (Jack) Doyle, of the Ford Motor Company, presented by Lion Bob Lutz. Doyle showed two motion pictures, "Eyes of the Navy," showing the training of young naval aviators, and pictures of the new Army scout car, being manufactured by the Ford company.

Rev. John Barrett, formerly a member of the club, was among the several visitors for the meeting.

London Hospital Invites Gifts For Support

The following communication, addressed to The Republican, was received Tuesday morning from Seymour Leslie, secretary of Queen Charlotte's Maternity Hospital, in London, of which the British king and Queen are patrons.

Persons wishing to reply to the appeal which the letter voices may address their letters to "The Executive Offices, Queen Charlotte's Maternity Hospital, Oakbrook, 339 Goldhawk Road, London, W. 6, England."

The letter follows:

Dear Sir:

I write to you after months of air raids that leave us the only large maternity hospital in London (England). We face the coming months, supported by American generosity and touching messages of sympathy.

One of our Nurses' Homes was hit by high-explosives and it has rained "incendiaries." Here, in historic "Queen Charlotte's of London," we know the courage of our poor mothers-to-be, their husbands absent, fighting for freedom's cause. They can only contribute life... for life must go on.

We give each mother free care, and our steel helmeted nurses reach them under gunfire, driving cars with anti-shrapnel roofs. Our Patron, Queen Elizabeth, has inspected our arrangements and Mr. and Mrs. Winston Churchill attended our entertainment. (Little Winston, their baby grandson, was attended at birth by Queen Charlotte's chief surgeon.)

Bringing the new life into the world and aiding it until 5 years old, costs this unendowed hospital eighty dollars—our war charity funds cannot include this work.

I feel that some of your readers may be moved to send their generous checks to us here, preferably by the Clipper. I would be deeply grateful for group, club or family contributions to our care of one or more of these mothers and hope we may be enabled to name a Cot (500 dollars) for your City in our American Ward.

I am,
Yours faithfully,
SEYMOUR LESLIE
Secretary.

Midget Cars Can Be Carried To Battle Zones By Airplane

Engineers Make Test Runs Through Hilly And Brush-Covered Terrain With Midget Reconnaissance Car.

THE United States army has a new blitz weapon of its own in a 1700-pound midget reconnaissance car. It is capable of 55-mile per hour speed, carries a machine gun and a crew, or a quarter-ton load. Huge cargo planes now in production for the United States government can swallow up four or five of these midget trucks, fully equipped, and deposit them in the battle zone ready for immediate action. Some of these cars have four-wheel drives. All are equipped with twenty-two Timken bearings to provide trouble-free action of the vital moving parts.

CONCERN NEAR EL DORADO REPORTS $30 ORE MISSED BY OPERATORS OF PROPERTY QUARTER CENTURY AGO

A rich eight-foot gold ledge in the Davidson property, two miles northwest of El Dorado, was overlooked by French capitalists who worked the mine 30 years ago, says a Sacramento report.

The ledge, recently discovered, is said to be sampling $30 a ton. The mine recently was acquired by the Alto Development company, which is moving machinery to the Davidson from property formerly operated near Tonopah, Nev.

The vein was missed by French interests about 1911, when they sank a 300-foot shaft, drifted north and south on a productive ledge in the lower level and extracted gold worth $350,000.

They were forced to retire from the mine by the outbreak of the World War in 1914. Considerable ore is said to remain in old workings as former operators mined only the richer quartz with gold worth $20.67 an ounce. Alto Development has acquired an adjoining 147 acres.

Today's Sport Parade

NEW YORK (UP)—Constant dripping of water wears away stone, the mills of the Gods grind slowly, so here in this year of grace, 1941, the West Side Tennis Club announces it will sponsor a tournament for professionals.

High time, if you ask me, which nobody did. The West Side Tennis Club, better known to fans as Forest Hills, has taken a step after all these years that logically should lead to an open national championship with the amateurs and professionals fighting it out just as they do in golf. An open championship should be the greatest attraction tennis has to offer, the gates should pick up and there could be a good piece of cash for the winner if he is a pro and a nice big cup for an amateur if he comes out on top.

Amateur tennis, it seems to me, has always been indifferent to the showmanship that helps make any athletic contest a better spectacle. There has been plenty of color on amateur tennis courts but it has been furnished voluntarily by the players and not by the tournament. Alice Marble's jockey cap, Frank Kovacs' antics and Bobby Riggs' cocky walk all have helped draw people to Forest Hills when those stars were amateurs, but the stars were strictly on their own. Nobody thought to give them a proper setting for their acts.

Professional tennis does better, as witness the debut of Miss Marble and Mary Hardwick. Miss Hardwick stood at attention in a white circle of light while a band played "God Save The King" and a giant Union Jack fluttered down from the ceiling of Madison Square Garden. Then Miss Marble stepped into the spotlight, the band played the "Star Spangled Banner" and an American flag broke out from above. Little things like that don't improve the brand of tennis, but they give the customers a better run for the $3.30.

The plan at Forest Hills is to invite eight of the leading male professionals and stage a round robin competition. There will be two doubles and two singles events on each of three days. Tilden, Don Budge and Fred Perry already have been invited and the remainder of the field will be chosen from the leading professionals.

This is not the first time that the professionals have set foot on the sacred soils of Forest Hills, but it is the first time that the nation's leading tennis club has underwritten the expenses of a professional tournament with the idea of taking the profit, if any. The three days of action from June 6 to 8 will produce the finest tennis you can find in the world today.

Persons who promote sports are strangely slow in doing things that make the competition more interesting to the spectators. It took years to convince the baseball magnates that it would be a good idea to put numbers on the players' shirts so the crowd could identify new faces. Only in the last few years have football teams blossomed out in bright uniforms. Golf galleries are beginning to get some kind of a break after decades of being pushed around by marshals and police.

So I have little hope that the idea that I'm about to toss out will be adopted soon. Nevertheless, it should be a terrific drawing card for tennis. Any extended discussion of the game invariably gets around to the question of how a woman player such as Miss Marble would fare against a top-flight male player. Some experts contend that there are 500 men in the United States who could beat Miss Marble; others say she would do all right against, say Tilden who is not as agile as he used to be. So I offer this to the West Side Tennis Club as an added attraction: Tilden vs Miss Marble for $500, winner take all.

Usherettes Hold Kiss Night

ped 10 tons of bombs on the coastal base, a communique issued at Cairo said, while the 15-inch guns of big British warships battered the harbor.

The attack on Tripoli was designed to weaken the Axis drive into Egypt, which Berlin and Rome declared was making progress in the Sollum sector again after considerable delay. Cairo reported RAF bombers were hammering again at the Axis lines in North Africa, causing much damage to transports and columns.

The Nazi threat of action against Turkey or Gibraltar (by way of Spain) continued but without immediate developments.

In London, U. S. Ambassador J. G. Winant promised the United States would give aid by action instead of words to Great Britain. In Tokyo, foreign minister Yosuke Matsuoka, expressed belief that the United States must take a peaceful attitude toward Japan because the Japanese have demonstrated a "peaceful policy" by concluding a neutrality treaty with Soviet Russia.

The stand of the British and the Greeks in the region of Thermopylae, 100 miles northwest of Athens, appeared to be a desperate 11th hour attempt to stem the overwhelming tide of men and metal which Germany has thrown into Greece for the knockout blow.

There was little hope in London—and presumably little more in Athens—that the bravery of the Allied soldiers would be sufficient to overcome the terrific odds against which they were battling.

London declined any comment on persistent German reports that the evacuation of British troops from the Greek theater was under way.

RED CROSS WILL SEEK TO BOOST MEMBERSHIP FIFTY PER CENT

WASHINGTON, (AP) — James L. Fieser, vice president of the American Red Cross in charge of domestic operations, told the annual Red Cross convention today the organization's membership must be increased 50 per cent to meet demands by the national defense program.

The Red Cross is getting ready for "any and all eventualities," he said. Organization activities must be increased, he said, and they will bring increased demands on Red Cross funds. In view of this, he added, "We will go after at least a 50 per cent increase in membership this autumn." Membership last fall was 8,700,000.
